David's Bad Experience in Summer Holiday

David had a bad experience during his summer holiday. He mainly spent his days on his computer. He spent twelve hours focusing on the screen every day! He did not even eat or drink from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.!

David's older sister, Charlotte was annoyed. She scolded him, "Can you stop playing computer games? Aunt May and Uncle Tom are both here. Come immediately and say hello to them! Did you hear me?" David ignored her. Charlotte was so angry that she wanted to explode like a volcano!

Charlotte could not control her anger and she ran to her own room and screamed at the top of her lungs. Suddenly, it all went quiet. There was no sound of the computer. Charlotte quickly ran to David's room and found that David was unconscious, lying on the floor. Charlotte went to find her mum in the garden and said, "Mom! Mom! David is fainted! He haven't eaten or drunk for a few days!"

An hour later, they were all in the hospital. The doctor came out with David, who was as white as a sheet. The doctor told David to eat something healthy and never spend too much time on the computer.

David really learned a lesson this time.

The Bad Experience of David

Last summer holiday, David learnt a lesson which he felt really bad.

The last day of school before the summer holiday, David rushed back home quickly and turned on his computer without changing his clothes. David was so excited to be back home as he could play the newest computer game called “Super Dash Baby”. He played while his mum was out to the supermarket.

David played the computer continuously from day to night. His mum came back and was angry that David had not taken his lunch which she prepared for him before she went out. Mum hit the top of the computer angrily and scolded David, “David Chan! I left a piece of paper near your lunch that told you to have your lunch first but you did not read it at all! Now, eat it or no computer next week!” “Fine, mum! I am going to eat it now!” David answered while munching his lunch quickly. His mum looked at him finished his lunch and went to sleep.

The next morning, David’s mother woke up. She called the paramedics quickly because David was fainted!

The paramedics arrived and brought David to the nearest hospital.

It was just in time to save David from death. David woke up and promised his mum he would not play computer games anymore.
